Elodie's immaculate interior is a reflection of her new lifestyle: less house, more home. Her love for natural fibers is defined everywhere in her home: a white linen slipcovered sofa, linen bedding, and storage baskets. Here and there, French thrifted pieces, such as the gilded mirror in the entryway, add a romantic touch to the ensemble.

Vintage and antique elements, like this wooden dresser, bring French character to the dining area.

In the master bedroom, which opens to the outdoors, Claire and Karim mixed industrial pieces with Scandinavian design. Another rug adds some global flair and serves as a reminder of this family's cultural heritage.

ABOVE: A vintage coat rack in Loanah and Romain's entryway hosts a collection of hats and fashion accessories. The blue painted door and moldings add a vintage charm to this tiny space.

OPPOSITE: The family—as well as Eden, the not-so-camera-shy French bulldog—spends an extensive amount of time on their patio during the warm seasons. A fabric triangle canopy offers protection from sunrays and poetically dances with the wind.
